CHECKOUT THE LATEST WORK.

Visual storytelling has been part of my life long before it became my profession. Raised around photography through my father's work, I developed an early appreciation for composition, detail, and emotion. In 2016, I formally began my journey behind the camera—driven not by trends, but by the pursuit of refined, intentional visuals that communicate more than words ever could. That pursuit led me to Canada, where I earned a Film Production degree from the University of Regina, mastering cinematography, editing, and narrative design. Today, as the founder of Chinkography, I collaborate with brands, creators, and businesses to craft cinematic visuals built for impact and longevity. With a strong portfolio, millions of organic views, and a growing international client base, my work sits at the intersection of storytelling, strategy, and visual excellence.
